

Staff mobility

Proposal for the Yerevan Communiqué

High quality mobility of academic, administrative and technical staff in higher education institutions helps the EHEA to flourish because such mobility is a key factor in the internationalisation of higher education systems and institutions. Therefore, we reiterate our commitment to promote staff mobility with the intention to make it an everyday reality and to turn it into an integral part of human resources development at our higher education institutions. We aim for a paradigm shift at all levels towards a more supporting environment for staff mobility on the basis of the attached guidelines.

We ask Eurostat together with the relevant national data collectors in the EHEA to improve data collection on staff mobility in order to better assess its quantity and quality. On this basis, we ask the BFuG to monitor progress in the field of staff mobility and to report on it at the Ministerial Conference in 2020.
